

About Ann Mortimer

Ann Mortimer is a professional watercolour artist and graduate trained teacher. She is a member of the Society of Floral Painters with whom she regularly exhibits.

Ann has been fascinated by the watercolour medium for more than twenty years, and became a full time artist and tutor in 2005. Since then she has become a popular tutor to art societies around the country, and has had several articles published in Leisure Painter. Her first book with Search Press entitled "Painting Flowers in the Landscape" is due out in October 2009. At Ann's workshops in her studio at home, six painters are treated to a day's concentrated painting tuition and a delicious lunch!

People who have been to a workshop with Ann will know that she makes every effort to encourage painters to reach their full potential as artists.

What Participants Said...

"Just to say thank you for a great day... and for inspiring me to get back to painting again... I look forward to October's workshop." JH

"What a bonus having lunch in the sunshine!" LH

"You certainly gave 100%." SM

"I learn so much at your workshops, it does me good to be stretched." AH
